First Nations Project of the Year

The Victorian Museums and Galleries Awards recognise and celebrate excellence across the sector. They seek to reward presenting and collecting organisations and the individuals who support and strengthen Victoria's creative and cultural industries through outstanding work and a commitment to best practice.

INTRODUCTION

The First Nations Project of the Year Award acknowledges and celebrates the outstanding efforts of individuals, groups, and institutions who demonstrate a commitment to placing First Nations first – advancing and showcasing First Nations art, artists, culture, and history. This award recognises innovative projects that foster meaningful and respectful collaborations between cultural institutions and First Nations communities, as well as those that demonstrate a clear understanding of and engagement with the contemporary issues of First Nations people.

ELIGIBILITY

All presenting and collecting institutions located within Victoria are eligible to be nominated in the 2024 Project of the Year Awards. This includes all public museums and galleries, archives, zoos, botanical gardens, historical societies, libraries, Keeping Places, science centres, and any other organisations that acquire, conserve and exhibit arts and cultural material. Nominated projects must address all assessment criteria and have commenced or completed within the past 12 months.

AREAS OF OPERATION

- Engagement (e.g., exhibitions, education, public programs)
- Collection management (e.g., research, conservation, policy)
- Organisational management (e.g., innovative policies relating to staff, governance, sustainability)

ASSESSMENT CRITERIA

The award will be judged by a panel of respected First Nations representatives, cultural experts, and industry professionals. The following are the criteria against which a nominated project will be assessed and scored:

- 1. Culture, Community and Country: The project ensures the involvement of Elders, knowledge keepers, and/or Traditional Organisations; recognises their contributions; and demonstrates a commitment to the celebration of First Nations culture.
- 2. Innovation: The project demonstrates innovation in its approach towards incorporating and presenting First Nations perspectives and knowledges within museum and gallery practice. This could include exhibitions, collections, audience engagement, or policy development.
- 3. Relevance: The project is relevant to the needs and interests of First Nations peoples and communities. This could include the exploration of current issues affecting First Nations people, such as social justice or environmental concerns.
- 4. Impact: The project has made a positive impact on audiences, communities, or museum and gallery practice. This could include increasing awareness and appreciation of First Nations art and culture; creating economic opportunities; and promoting or advancing Truth and Treaty.

Be advised that nominations will also be assessed on application quality. Judges will consider accuracy and clarity of writing, relevance of support materials, as well as effectively demonstrated outcomes.
